HILO RAILROAD OBJECTS NOW

The plans of the Inter-Island company for a wharf at Hilo as an alternative to the plan placed before the harbor commission by the Hilo Railroad Company were made public yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the board. The plans were drawn up by Engineer Southworth of Hilo and call for a wharf approximately 500 feet long, 120 feet wide, with double railroad tracks down each side and a 40-foot shed in the center. It provides a berth on each side of the wharf for a 500-foot steamer with room on each side at the inner end for an Inter-Island boat. Separate warehouse room is provided at the shore end of the wharf and parallel thereto. The plan was approved by the Volcano Stables Company, Brewer & Co. and Captain Peter Johnson. In addition to the Inter-Island company and the Matson company, as reported in the Bulletin yesterday afternoon.

Lorin A. Thurston opposed the plan as submitted. He said he had not had time to go fully into the matter, only having received the maps the day before, but had several objections to make at first sight. The matter will be taken up again this afternoon when the board meets, at 2 o'clock.

Thurston's objections are as follows: The new wharf points in a different direction to the first proposed one, and would therefore change the future wharf system of Hilo. Owing to the wharf projecting only 200 feet into deep water on one side it would be necessary to have it built on piles, which would mean a temporary structure, while in the railroad's plan the entire wharf, with the exception of a row of piles down one side, would be a permanent fill and would cost no more.

He also based an objection on the report of Engineer Rowell that no bottom had been found at eighty feet, only soft mud. The Inter-Island company has not disproved this, he stated, and is relying on a statement made by Engineer Southworth that the mud will hold the piles.

The wharf shed of 500 feet long and 60 feet wide would only hold the cargo from a 3500-ton steamer. If two steamers came to the proposed wharf there would be no room for their cargo. Even the full length of the shed is not available either, for two berths are allowed for the Inter-Island steamers, and they would want some of the space.

He then took up the matter of the expense of dredging and also the matter of the facilities for handling sugar. The system under the plans proposed by the Inter-Island company were, he stated, very complicated and cumbersome. He asked that the commission get the testimony of an expert on the matter.

Dealing with the railroad end of the matter, Thurston objected on the grounds that the new plan showed very poor terminal arrangements. He also objected because the new plan was based on the hypothesis that the proposed wharf was necessary to accommodate all the shipping that came to Hilo. He then stated that the Railroad wharf could look after all the shipping that came there now with the exception of the large steamers, and, continuing, denied the statement that the currents and undertow were bad and had been worse since the completion of the breakwater.

Owing to the fact that the new plan would cost $204,000, it is without any advantage in the financial respect either.

Replying to these statements, Attorney Hemenway, appearing for the Inter-Island company, stated that there had been too much said about railroad rights and not enough about the shipping rights. He submitted an argument by Engineer Southworth, which, however, was not read.

SIERRA SAILINGS TO SUIT PARADE

In another column will be found a special notice regarding the sailing of the "Sierra" from this port in the first week in February of the new year. It will be noticed that she will sail from this port on the 6th instead of the 7th of February, and the schedule has been swung on the other end so that the vessel will leave San Francisco on the 16th and that will bring her here on the morning of the 22nd, the day of the big Floral Parade.

It must be gratifying to those who have the management of the parade in hand to have their work so appreciated that the schedules of the ocean liners are disturbed on purpose so that the patrons may enjoy the pageant. The parade this year promises to be better than ever.

NEW SANITARY MAP WILL BE VALUABLE

That the sanitary survey of Honolulu now being compiled for the sanitary commission, created by the last Legislature, will be of the greatest use to the community is apparent from the way in which inquiries are coming in for copies. The tax department thinks that it will be of the greatest use to it, and the real estate and insurance men are also after copies.

The draftsmen now working on the map are just about able to keep pace with the reports brought in by the six inspectors on the job, and Professor Keller, who is in charge of the job, thinks that the whole thing will be completed in time. When finished the map will show every house and building of any description in Honolulu, and there will also be a report on the showing just what condition it is in.
